

Today I was sitting in writing class on the carpet. I was sitting there for a while listening to people read their stories and my leg falls asleep. I hate it when that happens because I don't like the feeling of the tingly and it feels like I have nails going in my foot. I was trying to get up and I felt like I was falling I could not feel myself walking I felt like my feet weren't touching the ground. Mrs. Bender ask me if I was OK and i said yes. I couldn't walk. I felt like I was tripping and I never had this feeling in my legs before. One time my legs fell asleep but it wasn't that serious well i hope that never happens to me again. Everytime I sit for more than 5 minutes my legs fall asleep I hate sitting for a long time. I'm so happy that my legs feel much better!
